CLASS PROPHECY

May 31, 1967
Hatrack, Tennessee

Dear Gert,

Ten years seems to us like a whale of a long time but I thought I'd tell you that I found many of the class of "57" doing weird and wonderful things on my recent trip to the big city.

Reverend Les Allen, the Billy Graham of 1967, just closed a successful revival in Pango-Pango.

Mademoiselle Janet Altizer fascinated me as she described with a faultless French accent, the gorgeous models at Lord and Taylor's style show. Saradell Thomas modeled for Christian Dior. Maxine Applegate passed by me as I left the show. I hardly knew her in her Salvation Army Uniform. Jesse Bagby (Phillip Tankersley, pen name,) was busily signing autographed copies of his best selling novel HOW TO WRITE INTELLIGENTLY.

I passed the large down town branch of Simmon's Beauty-Rest Mattresses and saw Judy Barton sleeping peacefully in the newest model.

Jo Ann Baughman was all a-twitter over having been chosen by Mae West as the gal with the shape most likely to replace hers.

On the other hand, Eleanor Bauer's handshake literally threw me---and why not? She had just won the women's wrestling championship of the middle-west.

After that, I felt the need of a drink, so I dropped in to Bauer's Bar where Larry Mixed me a mighty good snort.

Having herself a gay old time on Pepsis, was Ilah Black, quite smart looking in her WAVE uniform. She said that life in the service is not nearly as bad as four years at PHS!

Janet Blacketter was at the bar and I was aghast to learn that she appeared there nightly as "Slinky Sue."

David Bown came along and invited me in his most formal manner to shoot a game of pool in his hall in the next block.

While we were playing, C.A. (Squirt) Bradburn stalked in, followed by his "Boy" Ironchin McGlasson. Two sad Joe's, if I ever saw any! "Squirt" was sure "Ironchin" will win his next bout for the title.

Jerry Brant, respledent in a space suit, wandered in. He told me all about the guided tours he conducts on the moon.

On the way to the jet port where I was having my jet-copter serviced, I met John Browning who told me he enjoyed being owner of a large fleet of floral trucks. He told me that Roger Burbridge had a large petunia garden and was a cross-pollinating the various varieties with great success.

As I strolled by a gym I looked inside and was pleasantly surprised to see Roger Butler working out to keep trim as a weight lifter for a doughnut manufacturer.

Granville Capp's name was listed on a near-by theatre billboard as the voice of Mickey Mouse.

Glenn Capps almost knocked me down tearing along the street muttering something about needing a book to read for American History.

I paused at a corner newstand and noticed in a London newspaper that Linda Capps was caught in a night club raid while there with Princess Margaret. Lady Linda is one of the Princess's ladies-in-waiting, you know.

Also prominent in the news was a glowing account by Jim Carter about life at the North Pole where he is a pharmacist.

Neil Clark's picture as a disc-jockey-of-the-year grinned at me from the entertainment section of the Buenos Aires paper. The women's page featured a column for lonely hearts written by none other than Sophronia Hutter (Carole Collins, no less!)

Leafing through a copy of ESQUIRE, I noticed that Lynn Kriegshauser was the Humor Editor.

I decided to go to Sardis for luncheon and whom should I find as the hat check girl--Linda Daut. She told me about a number from our class and said Sue Sparks was advance agent for Sue Deemer's Flea Circus. This keeps them both laughing and scratching.

From Linda I learned that Dorothy Ellis is cashier in the cafeteria at Sing-Sing and David Ellis is a test driver for Lincoln-Mercury.

As I sat waiting for my order to be filled, Larry Freeman came along and told me what a fabulous time he is having as a fashion model photographer.

Speaking of fashions reminds me---Joyce Frazier is a traveling model for Jantzen sweaters.

Peggy Jo Hannel and her husband, I heard somewhere today, are the Roy Rogers and Dale Evans of Spring Creek Township.

I had just started to eat lunch when Otis Haskins sat down for a chat. He is marriage counselor for Stephens College at Columbia, Missouri.

I just missed seeing Jerry Heavner who is a salesman for do-it-yourself suicide kits. Business is not so good, I understand.

Otis had flown in a short time ago to talk with Kathy Higgins who operates a day nursery for underprivileged children. Frankly I did not get the connection.

The television set in my booth proved a mine of information about several of my classmates. Phil Hubbard, advertising manager for a well-known line of ladies lingerie, was interviewed, and Ruth Hull glibly gave the beer commercial.

Just as I was leaving Sardis, Gary Jeffers came in. In our conversation I learned that he builds model trains for the Walt Disney Company.

Speaking of beauty--Joyce Johnson, I heard today, was recently crowned "Miss Universe." The marvels of diet, girls!

Rita Kelly's wonderful cure for athlete's foot has put her on easy street.

In my wanderings I passed the King Foundling Home. Sarah waved to me from an upstairs window--a baby on one arm.

Junior Lane's twelfth volume of the life of Joseph McCarthy is just off the press and selling like flannel underwear in July.

The tactless soul who told me this was crisp Lavonne Lord, an efficiency expert on Time-Saving for the Good Housekeeping Institute.

We have so many in our class, I gave up at a late hour trying to learn the whereabouts of them all, but I went at it with renewed enthusiasm the next morning.

The telephone book in my hotel room was a great help. Sumae McAllister nearly knocked out my tired eyes when I saw and talked at the same time with her on the visual-phone. She has a chain of reducing salons. What a figure!

Poor Doris McConnell is battling the trade of trying to break in as a night club singer. Maybe some day she will get that break.

She told me Darrell McKee is slowly starving to death as a pearl diver in the shoals near Okinawa.

Today I heard somewhere in the jumble and rumble of the vast city, Ronnie Martin's voice bellowing the charms of a hula-hula gal in a carnival.

Oh yes, Bob Motley was throwing knives at a beautiful Indian girl in one of the tents.

I asked Ida Bell Moyer, who had a shooting gallery there, if she and Paul Dean had ever made it to the altar, and learned she had given him his ring back the night before.

In talking with her, I learned that Maxine Norton is conducting tours in Death Valley.

As I was leaving the carnival grounds, Barbara Ode saw me from her jet-copter and yelled that she had something she just HAD to tell me. After landing, she said she had just recieved patent rights on a fool-proof lie detector.

Don Pine chugged by on his motor scooter, pausing long enough to tell us he was on the last lap of a "round the world trip."

A loud explosion from a near-by fire cracker factory caused us to jump several feet. Gordon Pleus reassured us he was only testing the effectiveness of his company's latest product.

We needed soothing, so Barb accompanies me to a near-by restaurant where we sipped our drinks to restful music provided by Marvin Paxton and his zither.

Dorothy Plummer waited on us. She said that she planned to leave this job for the farm because city life was not for her.

I tore myself away from these two gabby characters and returned to my room for a much needed rest. After a snooze, I turned on the TV set, and there was glamour puss Sherry Ransom selling Revlon products.

A newscast brought me the flash that Pebble Beach (A. C. Reel), who had just completed his twelfth movie, would undoubtedly replace Rock.

I noticed on the desk in my room a colorful book about hypnotism, the author of which was Janice Rhodes.

In looking through some old theatrical magazines the maid had forgotten to take out with the trash, I read a glowing account of David Roads' performance as the lead in "Charley's Aunt."

Also in the magazines was Floyd Robertson's picture as the "Man of Distinction" who had recently switched to you know what.

Having spent too much time in this manner, I again hit the pavements, my destination being the the United Nations building. My guide was Lecie Robinson.

She said Louise Ruble was a tester for "Pop and Blow" bubble gum and stuck with the job.

Lecie had heard from home that J.M. Sapp had just been convicted of stealing more money from the taxpayers than Orville Hodge.

She had also heard that Deleta Shaw was the "Miss Brooks" of Pittsfield High and had written a foreword to Mike Smith's new book "How to Fly Kites on a Windless Day."

Almost forgot that Doris Smith Webel is making a name for herself as a stunt flier with a barnstorming outfit.

Nancy Smith, loaded down with books ran into me as I got off the elevator. She has her Ph.D in philosophy and loves going to school, she said.

Bill Stauffer had written her how much he is enjoying selling balloons at county fairs.

Leaving the UN, I met Shirley Thrasher who had just returned from a successful tour as a featured trampoline performer.

She told me that Roger Webel was getting nowhere as editor of "Confidential," but that Nancy Willis had just won a pogo contest, having jumped farther than the other contestants.

We were both pleased and surprised when Karen Willsey joined us. She was so busy as owner of a large fish hatchery that she felt she should see more people and fewer guppies.

Well, Gert, this is a long report, but you know me!

What am I doing? Well !!! Wouldn't you and the rest of the "57'ers" like to know!!!

See ya,

Myrt

HOMECOMING QUEEN

Dorothy Ellis, petite, winsome senior student was the girl selected as the 1957 Homecoming Queen. The crowning took place in the P.H.S. gym immediately following the game, which was unfortunately lost to Jerseyville. The gym was beautifully decorated with blue and white streamers and the festivities were well attended by the alumni. Queen Dorothy was crowned at the Homecoming dance by the football captain, Les Allen.

The 1956-1957 Junior-Senior Prom was based on the theme "Isle of Golden Dreams." The gym was beautifully decorated with crepe paper. At the south end was a boat dock where the orchestra, Eddie Randall and his Blue Devils, was seated. At the north end was the Queen's throne which was covered with pink and white napkins.

Sue Smith was crowned Queen by the president of the Junior Class, Ellis Sanderson. The attendants were Peggy Aldrich, escorted by Bill Vanatta; and Sue Frazier, escorted by John Bauer.

The program consisted of Jim Carter playing a cornet solo; Bud Vandiver, Dave Ellis, Marvin Paxton, and Roger Webel singing a selection of songs; Barbara Ode and Karen Willsey singing the theme song, "Isle of Golden Dreams".

THE 1956 PROM

Dum da da da dum da, and as we listen to the sweet music of Pomp and Circumstance, the 1956 Prom Procession walks slowly to the throne. They approach the throne and wait patiently for Marvin Paxton, President of the Junior Class, to crown the new queen. Kathy Higgins is escorted to her throne by John Browning, and the attendants take their places beside her. They are Dorothy Ellis, escorted by Allen Beard, and Sue Deemer, escorted by Jim Carter.

Themusic is furnished by the Culver Stockton Serenaders. For entertainment we have Lynda Halpin singing the theme song of the prom "Blue Moon." Jim Carter playing a coronet solo, and Barbara Ode singing "While We Were Young."

MEN'S CHORUS

The newly organized Men's Chorus was originated by Mr. Donald Kimpling. There were twenty-five members, and two accompanists. The chorus participated in the County Choral Festival at Griggsville, in November. They did not participate in concerts the first semester, but were in two concerts in the second semester. There were no contestants sent to the District Contest.

MARCHING IN THE FALL . . .

When the band marches down the street in a parade or marches out on the field at home football games, it is representing Pittsfield High. This year after getting new uniforms, a fresh spirit and most important--a new top-notch director, the band really looked snappy everywhere it appeared. At pep meetings in the gymnasium the band was always there to play our school song for everyone to sing.

PEP MEETINGS IN THE WINTER

The student body really appreciated the versatility of the band. Although we all remember many appearances of the musician as a marching band and a pep band, we also can remember the concert music presented later in the year. The band did not limit its service to Pittsfield High School, either. It appeared many times outside of school.

CONCERTS IN THE SPRING

Under the leadership of Don Kimpling, the annual band concert was held this spring in the auditorium. Earlier in the year the band were guests at the Western Illinois Homecoming Parade and were contestants in the band contest at Carrollton. These are just a few activities of a busy band led by a very ambitious conductor. Seniors will not forget this year. . .a year of music at Pittsfield High School.

ROW FOUR: J. Heavener, C. McGinnis, S. Deemer, N. Grimes, R. McKenna, L. Fisher, R. Freed, J. Norris, G. Faris, S. Ransom, F. Winans, Mr. Kimpling, P. Rupert, M. Jones, B. Biggs, M. Ducey, B. Watson.
